

Céline Pannetier

Artist statement

Céline is a French photographer currently living in Barcelona. She believes the special light of this city is probably her main trigger when she goes out for a stroll.

She always tries to have her camera with her, and if not, would use her cell phone to capture those shadows that mesmerize her.

She admits that photography almost equals to meditation: "When looking through the viewfinder, comes the silence, and the choreography of light, shadows and colors takes over". As a result she feels her photography is sitting between street photography, documentary photography and fine art photography.

The Straw Conspiracy

Barcelona:

1.7 million inhabitants.

13 million tourists visiting per year, mostly the historic center (2017 data)

La Boqueria Market used to be one of Barcelona's main food markets where its' neighbours would go to do their weekly family shopping for fresh, local products.

Those days are long gone! Today the market steeped into tradition until very recently, resembles more of a theme park attracting hoards of tourists every day. Take away stalls wherever you look; almost outnumbering the family-run stalls simply selling seasonal local produce from Anchovies to Zucchini.

Come and visit! Have a fruit salad to go – in a plastic bowl; a freshly squeezed fruit juice – in a plastic cup; a sample of local cured meats and cheeses – on a plastic plate.
